PRAYER, WORK AND PLAY

THE ARDUOUS DAILY ROUTINE IN CATHOLIC COLLEGES.

A Course of Study and Training That Weeds Out from the Priesthood Many Men Who Are Not Possessed of an Unflagging Zeal—Plain Food and Prayers.

What kind of a life is it in our colleges? Well, I suppose it is much the same as the life in colleges which are not ecclesiastical. Of course, church students have many more prayers to say, and are expected to observe the rules with more fidelity than other students.

They rise early—in foreign colleges at 5 in winter and 6 in summer—in most English colleges at 6 all the year round. Half an hour is allowed for dressing, after which all go down in silence to the church, where morning prayers are said, and a meditation is held for half an hour on some spiritual subject. Meditation is followed immediately by the celebration of mass, and altogether about an hour is spent every morning in spiritual exercises. Then follows study till breakfast time, at 8.

Breakfast consists of a bowl of coffee or tea, with bread and butter at discretion in the home colleges, while abroad one has a choice between coffee, milk and chocolate, but the bread must be eaten dry. It is wonderful what a substantial meal can be made of coffee and dry bread when there is nothing else to be had. A few minutes for recreation are allowed after breakfast, then work goes on till dinner time, broken only by half an hour's recreation at 11 o'clock.

PLAIN FARE.

Dinner, which is eaten at 1, is always a good, substantial meal, and ample justice is done to it after the rather dull breakfast. No study is allowed during the hour and a half following dinner. All who are well enough must join in the public games, which for the most part are played with great spirit and keenly enjoyed.

At 3 o'clock the studies commence again, and class and lecture or preparation for them, with half an hour's rest at 5, go on until 7 or half past, when thirty minutes are given to prayer and the reading of the life of some saint. After the prayers all go to the refectory for supper, which, like dinner, is eaten in silence, broken only by the voice of the reader, who reads aloud some biographical or historical work.

After supper there is recreation, and at foreign colleges this is always the favorite hour of the day. And very pleasant it is to hear the fresh young voices and merry hearted laughter echoing along the college cloisters.

At 9 the big bell rings out again for the last time that day, and at its first peal the talk and laugh are hushed, the groups break up, all—professors and church students alike—make their way to the church for night prayers. Prayers over the points for the next morning's meditations are read out, and after the singing of a hymn all retire to a well earned rest, which in most cases is only too soon disturbed by the noisy clanging of the great bell in the early morning.

THE WORK IS HARD.

Of course, every day is not a study day. Sunday is always, more or less, a day of rest, and at least one afternoon every week is devoted to outdoor recreation.

Yet, in spite of occasional play days, as they are called, and the holidays twice a year, the life is hard enough. It must necessarily go on for some dozen years before the student is called up for ordination. The life of a Catholic priest is indeed one to which many are called, but few are chosen. A great number of those who go to college, at the age of fourteen or fifteen, with the intention of becoming priests, do not reach the goal of ordination.

In some cases health breaks down, many grow weary of the routine and strict discipline of the life, others discover that they have no calling for the ecclesiastical state, and go out into the world to begin life afresh. So, from one cause or another, the student finds that by the time he is ready for ordination he has lost the company of many who stood by his side when he entered college.

Of six who went to college some seventeen years ago with the present writer, one is dead, one is practicing as a doctor in the United States, a third is manager of a bank in the north of England, another is serving as a mounted policeman in South Africa, and only two are priests.—A Catholic Priest in London Tit-Bits

THE CELEBRATED W. N. 999 LINIMENT.

FOR MAN OR BEAST.

For the cure of Sprains, Galls, Scatches, Cuts, Sores, or Lameness of any kind.

It is a sure cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sprains and Galls of any kind, and especially for Backache and Piles.

This Liniment is especially adapted to horses and animals of any kind. It has proven itself to be one of the most effective, speedy and permanent remedies ever introduced for the purposes it recommends itself wherever used.

The New York Herald, one of the most independent papers published, has been favoring the Democrats recently. It scouts the idea that the Democratic party must nominate a New York man or an Eastern man for President, and, in fact, believes that the chances of success with a Western man would be better than with Cleveland or Hill. It says:

"Good men and able men are to be found in plenty. It is a mistake to suppose that they all live on the sea coast. The East is rich in candidates who would serve the purpose, and so is the West. The West not less than the East. It is a political superstition that only an Eastern man can carry New York State. We have had our share of the honors and are quite ready to give other sections of the Union a chance. Indeed, the people prefer that the National Convention shall get out of the beaten track and fix on some new man. They would vote for such a man more freely than for Mr. Hill or Mr. Cleveland.

"What the people want is a good, square canvass, conducted on its merits, and the feeling is growing that a man from the West would make a better showing than any candidate from this region. If Hill seeks the nomination the cry will be Tammany; if Cleveland demands it the cry will still be Tammany. If some one outside of New York is chosen, there can be no such cry, and we can go into the fight on the great issues, pure and simple, without the drawback of local prejudices. We should have a clean cut canvass and no embarrassing questions to answer.

"That is what the people want and they don't want anything else. If the National Convention is wise enough to recognize that fact, the Democratic party will have as fair a chance to win as it can hope for. But if the Convention chooses a hackneyed, moss-covered candidate, it will become entangled in its folly, and learn, when it is too late, that it has made a blunder at the cost of a victory, which it might have easily and surely won."

WHY THEY OPPOSED A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

At the general election in November, 1890, the question of calling a Constitutional Convention was submitted to a vote of the people. A majority of the electors of the State voted in favor of a Convention, and the people expected that the Legislature would, in accordance with the constitutionally expressed wish of the majority, provide for holding such a Convention. In this, however, they were mistaken. The bosses who controlled the representatives of the people decreed that no Convention should be held to revise the Constitution, and their henchmen in the Legislature refused to canvass the vote. This open violation of their official oath by a majority of the members, was approved by the Virginia Enterprise and other shining lights of so-called Republicanism in Nevada. The men who control the dominant party, manages the Comstock mines, the quartz mills and the mint. They seem to understand "Addition, division and silence," and are satisfied with the opportunities afforded them by the present Constitution for making money. They desired no change and could afford to spend money to prevent any being made. They cared nothing for the will of the majority, and by coin or other persuasives, got the Legislature to ignore it. Under the Constitution, as it is, corporations have advantages of which they might be deprived if the instrument should be revised. Directors are responsible for nothing, and the companies are not even obliged to keep an office in Nevada. They run mines and mills and railroads to suit themselves; make every dollar there is in the business, and divide only with a few favorites. They have bosses to run Conventions and Legislatures, and appeal to partisan prejudices to endorse their acts at the ballot box, and that appeal is never made in vain.

THE SPEAKER-ELECT.

Hon. Charles F. Crisp, who was chosen Speaker of the House of Representatives by the Democratic caucus last evening, is one of the brightest and most eloquent men in the United States. He is an able debater; clear, concise and logical, and is thoroughly conversant with parliamentary rules, not excepting those adopted in the last Congress by Czar Reed. He is not as ardent a tariff reformer as Mills, but he is a pronounced advocate of the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

There is now said to be no animal or bird in the Central Park menagerie, New York, that does not eat peanuts. Many species were at first much averse to peanuts, but the persistence of the children in forcing them upon every creature there has had such an effect that even the lions, pelicans and everything except the snakes has acquired the peanut habit.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

An Exciting Contest—Crisp of Georgia Elected.

WASHINGTON, December 7.—The twenty-second ballot was destined to mark the first significant change of the day. Cable and Newberry abandoned Springer and voted for Mills. Tarsney left Hatch and voted for Crisp. During the succeeding ballot the excitement was intense. Shively had notified Cable and Newberry that whenever they deserted Springer for Mills he and his friends would go for Crisp. This threat was carried out by Shively and Stout changing to Crisp. Cobb and Dearman then left Hatch and voted for Mills. Immediately there was the wildest excitement. Catchings, and others of the Crisp forces, rushed from the hall into the headquarters of Hatch. There was a brief conference, and Catchings reappeared, followed by Hatch, who voted for Crisp, and Byrnes and Wilson of his State followed the lead. This gave Crisp the lead of five votes. The 23d ballot resulted: Crisp 100, Mills 95, McMillan 19, Springer 13, Stevens 1.

On the 24th ballot Springer lost another vote to Crisp. This was the only change, but it gave Crisp the lead of 6 over Mills. Then the assault upon the Springer forces ceased, and terrific efforts were made to break McMillan's ranks. Members rushed hither and thither, but their efforts were in vain. The 25th, 26th and 27th ballots failed to show any change. Then a recess was taken until 8 p. m. The two hours' interval was industriously utilized. Springer and McMillan held a conference with the result that they decided to act together in terminating the contest, should it become inevitable, that either Crisp or Mills must be elected.

Springer and his supporters held a secret conference at which Springer thanked his followers for their loyal support, and stated his belief that either Crisp or Mills would be elected. He said: "I am prepared to throw my influence and vote for either of the candidates you may desire to support as a unit, with a positive understanding with the man we may elect, that I want nothing, but my friends must be well treated." [Applause.]

After Springer's withdrawal, the delegation discussed briefly the question of this policy, and finally decided that each should vote as he desired. Either or any of them could not be learned. That most of McMillan's followers were decidedly pledged to second choice when he should withdraw, and that Springer and his immediate friends held the key to the situation, was the general opinion, and the first ballot of the evening was awaited with breathless interest. The first change came when two of Springer's friends voted for the Georgia candidate, and two went to Mills' forces. Crisp was now within eleven votes of the nomination but McMillan's 19 men were still unmoved, and no election was possible while they remained loyal to the Tennessee candidate.

At the beginning of the 30th ballot McMillan, who had been standing in the rear lobby, entered the hall, obtained recognition, and, thanking his followers, formally withdrew from the contest amid applause. As the ballot proceeded his followers began to scatter, McMillan voted for Mills. Changes came in rapid succession, and at the conclusion of the ballot Crisp stood out with 114 votes and Mills with 108. The Georgia candidate was one short of the nomination, with Springer and his little band of followers holding the balance of power. Great applause greeted Springer as he entered the hall. He asked for recognition from the Chair and prepared to vote. The suspense was painful. "I desire," said Springer, "to be recorded as voting for Mr. Crisp." The vote of Springer nominated Crisp and the applause which greeted the announcement was deafening. A dozen members rushed to grasp the Illinoisian's hands, and he was the recipient of an enthusiastic ovation from the supporters of Crisp. Bussey, Stewart and Holman followed their candidate and voted for Crisp.

Snow of Illinois, Bryan of Nebraska and Martin and Patton of Indiana remained on record as voting for Springer, so the result of the final and decisive ballot was Crisp 109, Mills 105, Springer 4 and Stevens 1.

Opening of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, December 7.—The Senate galleries were crowded to-day with spectators to witness the opening of that branch of Congress. New Senators to be sworn in counting up seventeen without the Senator from Florida, neither the name of Call nor Davidson being on the printed list. At noon the Vice President took the chair and the session opened with prayer by Chaplain Butler. After this the Vice President laid before the Senate the credentials of the new Senators. The credentials of Call and Davidson, each claiming to be Senator from Florida, were read, and Harris moved that they be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. George said he would not object to this request but that to-morrow he would insist that the Senate have both facts and law before it, and ought to proceed at once to seat Call as the legally elected member. After a few remarks by Hoar the matter went over. When the credentials of Senator Brice, Senator-elect from Ohio, were presented Senator Sherman said: "Before the oath of office is administered to Mr. Brice I desire to say that a large portion of the citizens of Ohio contend that he was not an inhabitant of that State at the time of his election, and was, therefore, not eligible to a seat in the body. I am entirely satisfied that Brice is entitled to be sworn in on the face of his credentials which are regular in form. I give this notice, however, so that his being sworn may not be considered any waiver if the people or the Legislature of Ohio should assert and prove to the satisfaction of the Senate that Brice was not at the time of his election an inhabitant of Ohio. The swearing of the newly elected (or appointed) Senators was then proceeded with. They were sworn in groups of four or five. Hoar said as to Chilton of Texas, there was a question as to whether the Governor of Texas had the power to appoint before a vacancy actually occurred. He would afterwards move to refer the case to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Hale said he desired to examine the credentials of Dubois and asked that they lay on the table until to-morrow. It was agreed to. The name of Hill, Senator-elect from New York, was not printed on the list, nor was his credentials presented. There were but four members of the Senate not in their seats. These were Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, Stanford of California and Vance of North Carolina. Hoar submitted a motion that Call be admitted to take the oath as Senator from Florida, and said he would let it go over until to-morrow. Oulom made a like motion in reference to Dubois. After the transaction of some routine business the Senate adjourned.

The Hale and Norcross Suit.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 7.—To-day was a lively day in the Hale and Norcross mining case. A large amount of testimony was adduced, showing the recklessness with which proxies were voted at the annual elections for the Directors of the Company. Then Attorney Baggett asked leave to submit in evidence the books of the Nevada Mill & Mining Company. The defense made a vigorous fight against the admission, but Baggett held it could be shown by the books that Hobart and Haywards had made enormous profits out of Hale and Norcross ore, thereby defrauding the stockholders of the mine, plaintiff was entitled to furnish such proof. After a long argument by counsel, Judge Hebbard announced that the question was of too great importance to decide hurriedly. After a recess, the Judge gave his ruling upon the question, holding that the books were admissible. He stipulated, however, that questions relative to the accounts shall be limited only to those relating to the transaction with the Nevada Mill. Any transaction between the Nevada Mill and any of the officers of the Hale & Norcross Company were also proper subjects for investigation.

The new postoffice site in San Francisco, which was recommended by the Commissioners and satisfactory to the Department, will not be accepted because of a defective title. Though the newspapers, one and all, protested against the selection of the site, which was not valued at more than three-fifths of the price which the Government was to pay for it, and the Chamber of Commerce objected to it because the location was not central, the Department was determined to purchase it, and would have done so were it not for the defective title.

Senator M. D. Foley returned yesterday from San Francisco where he was laid up with neuralgia for some days.

THE IRVING DRAMATIC CLUB.
A Fine Treat Promised Those Who Attend the Lyceum Next Friday Evening.
The Irving Dramatic Club are rehearsing nightly for their initial presentation of the celebrated farce "Turn Him Out." The play is one of the most interesting and humorous in its ludicrous situations of any on the American stage. The following is the cast:
Nicodeamus Nobbs.....Dr. H. A. Fredrick
Mormanduke Moke.....F. Hagerman
Rosenleaf, a dude.....C. Butts
Mrs. Moke.....Mrs. Russell
Susan.....Miss Nellie Little
The play is under the stage management of J. B. Titus, the general manager of the Irving Club, a gentleman well known in histrionic circles as an actor and manager of signal abilities. Everybody should attend the Lyceum Friday evening, as a circus may be expected.
A Strange Circumstance.
William Harris of Boston went into the Barnett House at Cincinnati and wrote his name on the register. He had scarcely done so when he was startled to see a few lines above an exact fac simile of his signature, William Harris, New York. He looked closely at it, wondering whether it could be possible that he had already registered. He was sure that he was sober, but it certainly looked like his own signature. Presently a gentleman stepped up to the counter and asked if there was any mail for William Harris. William Harris, of Boston, looked up and beheld his double, a man dressed like him, and so similar in features that a stranger could not tell them apart. One turned out to be a traveling man and the other a comedian. They are not related.

UP RIVER NOTES.
Items of Interest from the Cold Regions.
Since my last our small burg has settled down to a comparative state of quiet, occasioned by the drafting of a number of men upon the completion of the ice houses. However, some twenty-five men are employed on the ponds, while buildings are still being erected, the latest being that of Mr. James McIver, who quietly stole a march on the boys and married Miss Elliott of New York. As Jim is one of the boys he intends to remember us soon by a genuine "house warmer."
The death of the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burgin from diphtheria has been a sad blow to the parents.
Miss May Estabrook, who was night operator here last Winter, has taken up her residence among us and is heartily welcomed as she made many friends during her stay; but her marriage to Mr. D. W. Dysart on the first inst. was somewhat of a surprise. Both have the best wishes of their host of friends along the river. May their future be one of unalloyed happiness and prosperity is the wish of all.
It was with profound sorrow that we learned of the death of poor "Skimmer-born," our brother correspondent, Mr. J. B. Lowery, in Reno. Little did we expect this when he left here recently. Congenial and pleasant at all times, and as good-hearted as he could be, he leaves many friends that will always remember him with kindness. Mr. Lowery was to have received some $5,000 from the Government within a few days on account of Indian depredations.
We learn that an assessment was levied on the Floriston Ice Co., while the Rocky Run Ice Co. paid a handsome dividend last month.
The National Ice Co. has everything in readiness for an ice crop.
The saw mill closed down on the 20th of last month after cutting some 700,000 feet.
The ice men are in ecstasies over the favorable weather of the past few days. A 1 ponds are closed with ice varying from three inches to several inches in thickness. The ground is covered with snow from four to six inches in depth, which, in the language of the ice men is the best indication of a bountiful harvest. In a few days more our burg will be lively with laborers on the ponds.
Mr. Frank H. Peacock is doing "night duty" as operator here.
Six deer were seen here to-day moving down the river, driven from the high peaks by the snow.
The thermometer registered 6 degrees below zero here this morning and to-night at 8 p. m. stands at 2 degrees above zero.
The Peoples' Ice Company has commenced shipping ice again.
B.
The Coroner's Verdict.
A Coroner's Jury was summoned yesterday to inquire into the cause of the death of Wm. Hedges, whose body was found in the ruins of the fire Saturday morning. The following is the report of the jury:
We, the undersigned, the jurors summoned to appear before J. V. Peers, the Coroner of Washoe county, at Reno, on the 7th day of December, A. D., 1891, to inquire into the cause of the death of a remains supposed to be that of a human being found in and among the embers of a fire occurring at Gilmore's Gardens, in Reno, on the morning of December 5th, 1891, having been duly sworn according to law, and having made such inquiry after inspecting the body and hearing the testimony adduced upon our oaths, each and all do say that we find the deceased was William Hedges; was a native of California, aged about thirty-five years, and that he came to his death on the 5th day of December, 1891, by being suffocated and burnt in the fire partially consuming the aforesaid Gilmore's Gardens.
And we further are of the opinion that the fire was of incendiary origin, seriously impugning one John Savage.
All of which we duly certify by this inquiry in writing by us signed this, the 7th day of December, 1891.

A WEATHER PREDICTION.
What a Very Old Settler Says of the Winter.
E. Penrod, who has lived in Nevada since 1852, and paid particular attention to the weather, makes the following predictions in the Elko Independent:
December will be moderately cold with a heavy fall of snow; January will be extremely cold with but a light fall of snow and February will be very cold with the heaviest fall of snow during the Winter.
He also predicts that there will be twenty feet of undrifted snow on the level in the mountains and that there will be the heaviest fall of snow ever known in the State. Mr. Penrod did not tell the Independent reporter the reasons for his faith farther than his observations of the weather for several successive seasons.
O. D. Van Duzer, recently appointed Nevada Land Agent at Washington, left last evening for the scene of his duties via San Francisco and the Southern route. Mr. Van Duzer is a young man, bright and exemplary in his habits, and carries with him the well wishes of all for his future success.
Advice from Washington received at a late hour last night say the President's message will not be sent to Congress before Wednesday at the very earliest.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MUSIC IN EVERYTHING.
The Noss Jollities Something of a Revelation.
The Chico Enterprise of December 3 says of the Noss Jollities, who are billed for McKissick's Opera House next Saturday evening: The Noss Jollities were something of a revelation. We went, possessing not a very clear idea of what manner of entertainment it was to be. We came away, certain of one fact, that everything they touched turned to music. It was a combination of novel surprises, each new departure being a signal for the inquiry, "What can possibly be coming next?"
Dignified chorines and washubs contained a chime of bells; potato cutters were transformed into Aeolian harps; unromantic black bottles gave forth sweet sounds, and coffee pots and grip sacks were brass bands in disguise. An exceedingly meek looking donkey on wheels was fitted up with a musical interior upon which four of the Jollities played their little pieces, the donkey, as leader of the orchestra, keeping time with his tail.
"The Oxyphones," as printed on the programme, aroused the audience's buoy of curiosity to the full. It proved to be a clever combination of cow horns, a ranged for the different parts.
The opening piece, played on mandolins and guitars, was, perhaps, in point of excellency, the gem of the evening.
But they played on every instrument the imagination could conjure up, singly, and all at once, until the stage fairly rang with music in the air and the audience became tumultuous in turn, and encored everything from A to and-so-forth.
One of the features of the programme was a fancy military drill, by Misses May and Bertha, dressed in the uniform of the French Zouaves.

Miss Mabel Booton the Winner of the Medal.
The Demorest oratorical contest for a silver medal was held at the Baptist Church last evening. Eight contestants entered the field, the prize being awarded to Miss Mabel Booton, with Miss Sadie Phillips second best. The judges were T. V. Julien, Judge Cheney and O. A. Norcross. A large crowd was in attendance and the speaking throughout was good.
The contestants were Miss Helen Durant, Miss May Palmer, Miss Evans, Justus Taylor, Phillip Emery, Job Taylor, Sadie Phillips and Mabel Booton.

CRISP FOR SPEAKER.

Chosen by the Democrats on the Thirtieth Ballot.
Charles Fredrick Crisp, who represents the Third Georgia District, was chosen Speaker of the House by the Democrats on the thirtieth ballot and will be formally elected to-day. He was born on the 29th of January, 1845, in Sheffield England, where his parents, who were Americans, had gone on a visit, and was brought to this country the year of his birth.

Though he is not advanced in years, the present will be his fifth term in Congress. He fought in the Confederate army with the rank of Lieutenant; was taken prisoner and incarcerated in Fort Delaware. After his release in 1865 he read law in Shelby county, Georgia, where, at Ellaville, he opened an office for practice. Subsequently he served in a local court as Solicitor General, and in June, 1877, was appointed Judge of the Supreme Court of the Southwestern Judicial Circuit. He was elected to that office the next year, and again in 1880. In 1882 he resigned in order to become a candidate for Congress, of which he is a leading member.

How Snakes Climb.

How do snakes climb? is a question which has been frequently asked. Many have thought that they accomplish the feat by wrapping themselves about the tree and following a spiral course upward. Several years ago a story went the rounds of the papers to the effect that two woodchoppers, having felled a large oak tree several feet in diameter and very tall, found in its top two common blacksnakes.

After pondering for some time the men arrived at the conclusion that one snake had taken hold of the other's tail, and thus by co-operation they had been enabled to clasp the trunk, and by circling about it had ascended to the top.

Whatever probability may have attached to this conclusion has been dispelled by the observation of two young naturalists while hauling firewood from the forest.

A black snake, measuring perhaps a trifle over six feet, was found clinging to the side of a small tree, around which it could have wrapped itself nearly twice had it wished to do so. Instead of this the snake passed right and left at short distances, catching the folds along its under parts over and behind the slightly projecting roughnesses of bark.

As the snake rested only five or six feet off the ground one of the young men grasped its tail to test its climbing qualities, but so great was the force with which it pulled upward that it proved a difficult task to hold it. Finally, becoming annoyed at this ill treatment, the snake reached down threateningly at the offending hands, and losing its hold fell to the ground. It was borne home in triumph but was afterward returned uninjured to the forest.—Youth's Companion.

One Method of Making Money.

A man who had only a few hundred dollars left out of a fortune called one day at a banking house and asked to see the manager, who was a man of conservative mind and fully acquainted with the best and most profitable investments.

Throwing down his roll of banknotes he said: "Invest this for me. Use your pleasure with it. I'm going to the country for the remainder of the summer. I will leave my address with you, and you can let me know what you do with it."

The man walked out and was not seen again for many months. His money was judiciously invested on his carte blanche order and began to accumulate. The house duly informed him, according to its business methods, of his good luck, but nothing was heard from him personally for some time.

Some months afterwards he presented himself at the banking house, rosy health beaming in his face, well dressed and portly. The manager failed to recognize him at first, but when his memory was refreshed he recalled the circumstances of the case.

Now, this was an example of a man who more than doubled his savings by simply taking the advice of an experienced and reliable man. And this is not a solitary case. It is one of many such that happen every day throughout the length and breadth of our land.—Henry Clews in Ladies' Home Journal.

Japanese Women.

It would be hard to say how Christianity-in-name, as we usually have it, could improve the conduct or character of the Japanese women, who seem always to have been very good Christians without knowing it, if we are to believe Miss Bacon. Perhaps the answer to the conundrum is that Christianity is not primarily a purifying force, but is first an enlightening force; that its ideal is virtue, not innocence—Gethsemane, not Eden. The harmlessness of the dove will not avail without the wisdom of the serpent; the impulse of our faith is toward consciousness, knowledge. No doubt this is what the Japanese feel in it; probably it is what makes them willing to change their civilization for ours. They really seem a race of better and sweeter nature than ourselves; unless their witnesses misreport them they are gentler, kinder, even truer, than we are naturally.

But something seems lacking to them, and they look toward us for it; they fancy spiritual possibilities on the plane which we tell them is above theirs. The fine perfection of their art is a stunted beauty; it has never the infinite reach of the Greek; the loveliness of their lives is childlike; it has not the celestial aspiration of the Hebrew; and no doubt they feel this as clearly as they perceive the difference between us and our ideals.—William Dean Howells in Harper's.
